Request for newspaper and PR department contacts

Each field season, JIRP students are responsible for writing blog posts about both their science activities and general experience of living on the Icefield for two months. These posts are written under the mentorship of faculty and staff to support students' development in science writing and communication. We publish them on the JIRP website as well as our JIRP Facebook pages and they are hugely popular with friends, family, and science colleagues.

This year, we would like to ask each student to share contact information with newspapers/news outlets in their hometowns and/or the PR or department contacts at their academic institutions. JIRP will contact these entities at the beginning of the season with links to the JIRP website so peers and general public can follow the experience online.

Please share the following information with Deb Gregoire, Program Coordinator- (deb.jirp@gmail.com or fger.jirp@gmail.com):
